SUMMARY

Hello! My name is Erick Bravo and I am a self-motivated and enthusiastic Software Developer from California. I am a Frontend Developer with many Backend capabilities and have worked on high impact client projects which required effective and extensive communication. I absolutely love putting in the time to learn and explore new tech if it means moving the team forward. Besides past client projects, I have revamped the Yosemite Community website which benefits 2000+ employees who live in Yosemite National Park. I have also completed a rigorous and selective Software Development program, where I put in 1000+ hours of intensive learning and pair-programming work. My entire career has been so far fully remote, and I am again eager to provide skillful contributions to a project of high demand.
